THE CHALLENGE

Abuse, neglect, sexual abuse – these are horrific crimes that are extremely personal in nature and difficult for victims to discuss. Like adults, our vulnerable child victims experience shame, fear, guilt and embarrassment and can be reluctant to participate in the investigative process. Getting children to overcome their fear and shame to trust an adult enough and share their experience can be difficult. But talking about it is the first step to providing safety and healing.

According to the Kids Count Data Center, a project of the Annie E. Casey Foundation and the Indiana Youth Institute, Madison County has among the highest rate of substantiated cases of child abuse and neglect per capita in Indiana.

In 2017 there were 1,189 substantiated cases of child abuse and neglect in Madison County and Kids Talk served 742 children. Clearly, child abuse intervention needs to be a priority in our community.

KIDS TALK

A MODEL FOR SUCCESS

Kids Talk is based on the child advocacy center model. At its core, the model is about teamwork – bringing agency professionals involved in a case together on the front end of a case. It's about putting the needs of the victim or child first.

WE DO THIS BY:

- Providing a safe and welcoming place for children and adults to be heard
- Bringing the system to potential victims, by providing a single location for forensic interviews rather than having them endure multiple interviews by various agencies
- Utilizing a certified forensic interviewer who can meet the informational needs of all investigative professionals involved while remaining victim-focused
- Facilitating a collaborative approach among agency investigative professionals that results in effective, efficient and victim-centered casework
- Ensuring that victims, and parents or caregivers of the children are guided towards programs that will facilitate the healing process for the child and family

VICTIM ADVOCACY

Children and families along with vulnerable adult victims need support in navigating the various legal and support systems they encounter which may be unfamiliar to them. Crisis intervention, assessment and support services help to assess their needs; reduce fear and anxiety; and expedite access to appropriate services.

Kids Talk has on-staff Victim Advocates who work with the child and non-offending caregiver from the time their appointment is scheduled until they feel no additional follow up is needed.
