Performance Stage

Event design should be all encompassing and have purpose, which is generally to create an environment that conveys the message and the theme of the event while staying true to the program's overall objectives. Whether the event is a celebration, awards ceremony, meal function, workshop or general session there is always a message that needs to be conveyed. It is about engagement; not simply making the room look good.

MAKE A GREAT FIRST IMPRESSION

An events entire mood can be set as your guests walk through the door for the very first time. A dark room with neutral tones and subtle natural sounds conveys an intimate and personal setting, while a room lit with bright moving colors and upbeat music evokes energy and sets the tone for a highly motivating speaker or celebration. Use technology to awaken the five senses and transform your event into an experience.

TAKE ADVANTAGE OF YOUR VENUE

During the grand opening of Battelle Grand, the largest ballroom in Ohio, the Greater Columbus Convention Center showcased the "marvelous experience realm" to guests by incorporating aerialist.

The performance was layered over the expansive windows with a string of fireworks hung outside with spectacular results.
